Look for the July issue on digital newsstands (online at ngm.com, on smartphones and tablet computers) now and on print newsstands June 28. Authors and photographers are available for interviews. Photos and video are available.

National Geographic magazine’s yearlong exploration of the power of parks, celebrating the centennial of the National Park Service on Aug. 25, 2016, continues this month with a special look at Virunga National Park. Every issue this year is dedicated to helping people better understand the wonders and challenges of parks across the world. Visit natgeo.com/parks for more.

COVER STORY: Beyond Reasonable Doubt
Criminal forensics has been accused of being more craft than science. Can it shake that reputation?
(by Veronique Greenwood, photographs by Max Aguilera-Hellweg)

Great White Mystery
They are the world’s most famous sharks—yet we know so little about them.
(by Erik Vance, photographs by Brian Skerry)

The Battle for Virunga
At one of the world’s most dangerous parks, survival depends upon making peace with desperate, discontented neighbors.
(by Robert Draper, photographs by Brent Stirton)

Smartphone Americana
After more than 20 years abroad, a photographer explores his own country.
(written and photographed by David Guttenfelder)

Greece, Gods, and the Beyond
Ancient Greeks believed that gods played a role in all life, from the underworld to realms above.
(by Caroline Alexander, photographs by Vincent J. Musi and David Coventry)